

The Society of Chiropractors and Podiatrists issued revised standards for the decontamination of instruments in February 2009. These recommendations included separate decontamination areas similar to the guidelines issued for dental practices. The Society recommended that, wherever possible, an automated method of cleaning is used, ie washer disinfecter. When purchasing a new autoclave, the model should have a printer attached. By 31 December 2010, sterilisation must be at a temperature of 134°C.

Podia Clave +

Designed to give you more for your money with a high capacity for faster throughput: the PodiaClave + has a much bigger capacity than many other autoclaves and yet has one of the smallest footprints on the market. This means that it can take either 6 full size trays or 12 half size clip trays or, with the specially-designed carrier option, 5 cassette/clip trays. All this gives you a faster throughput of instruments, improving efficiency and reducing costs, whilst taking up much less valuable space.

- Podia Clave + has a vacuum cycle and a non vacuum cycle to give maximum flexibility in use
- Features a single use water system
- Cycles - all at 134°C
  - a) Non vacuum cycle without drying for loose, solid unwrapped instruments
  - b) Small load vacuum cycle with drying for single pouched instrument tray
- 16 litres capacity
- Full load vacuum cycle with drying for multiple pouched instrument trays
- Test pack cycle without drying - for single unwrapped instrument tray
- Fully compliant and CE marked to BS EN 13060:2004
- Included in the price Printer, standard 6 tray carrier, 2 x 282 mm trays and 1 pouch tray

Enigma Sterilisers

Manufactured from the highest quality materials providing many years of trouble free service. All units are supplied with a printer as standard enabling full sterilisation documentation to be retained for future reference. Each cycle on the Enigma steriliser incorporates a drying phase. Enigma steriliser operates on a clean water only system totally separating the used and unused water. This method dramatically reduces the risk of cross infection of the sterile load by endotoxins that may be present in the used water. The Enigma range is compliant to 93/42 CEE.

Type N=Non-vacuum autoclave for sold,unwrapped instruments

Type S= Vacuum autoclave for wrapped and hollow items

Type B= Vacuum autoclave pouched or hollow instruments ,plus porous loads (gowns, drapes)

Ultrawave Ultra Ultrasonic Cleaners

Ultrasonic baths have been used within the healthcare sector for over 20 years as a means of decontaminating surgical instruments. Recent government guidelines (HTM2030, A12) and the growth in public awareness of Hospital Acquired Infections (HAI's) has seen an increased focus on the importance of stringent infection control.
